SAMPLE1.

Many of us know smoking is injurious to health. When a person is smoking, during inhaling nicotine is pumped into lungs, blood cells. After a period of time the blood cells become habituated to nicotine, which makes the person addicted to smoking. With excessive smoking, it can cause blood cancer or lung cancer, which can lead to death of the person. During exhaling the nicotine can be absorbed by people standing around him even though they are not smoking. Those innocent lives will also get affected. Hence, strict rules have to be applied to stop smoking in public areas.

To begin with, in some countries youngsters simply follow cinema stars in the movie industry. When we are watching movies, if heroes smoke the cigarette in different styles, many young people blindly follow them. After a while they will slowly become addicted. It is important that censor board should implement strict rules on those kinds of activities.

Secondly, public smoking in open areas such as community centers and public grounds can cause health issues to the people who come to refreshment activities like playing, walking and jogging.

Additionally, the Government should also provide awareness programs through TV, newspapers about the repercussions of smoking in public places.

In summary, I feel the public smoking should be banned in all countries for the benefit of their citizens.
Smoking is injurious to health. Though this statement is written on every cigarette pack, there are increasing a number of people that are being addicted to this bad habit. I do think that all countries in the World should discourage smoking as much as they can.

Inhaling tobacco can lead to serious ill effects on the health of an individual. Lung related diseases are most common in the people that smoke regularly. The person who does not smoke but inhales the smoke exhaled by a smoker also stands great risk of damaged health. Due to these reasons, Government should consider smoking as a serious threat and take appropriate actions. Rules like not allowing citizens to smoke in public areas and limiting the export and import of tobacco help reduce the effects.

Some countries might have limitations on the extent to which they can limit tobacco consumption. The main reasons are the revenue that the tobacco business generates and the ties established with other countries due to the export and import relation. Though these are genuine concerns, Governments should think of ways to come around these and other possible setbacks. For instance, instead of growing tobacco, the agricultural department can analyze the soil to determine other possible crops that the land would be fertile for. Further, instead of banning smoking altogether, Governments can take step by step approach starting with huge campaigns against smoking, then restricting the areas with the ultimate goal to ban smoking altogether.

In summary, I believe that any life threatening habit should not be allowed freely. For some countries, it might not be easy to establish regulations against smoking as easily as other countries but I feel there will always be ways around when the country is interested in the welfare of its citizens.
