Some people believe that money is everything in today's life, however some say it is not. Discuss both and give your opinion.

In the contemporary scenario, world is inclined towards the materialistic gadgets and gizmos. Wind of development is on its face, Hence there is a tremendous change in the life pattern, in which money play an indispensable role. However some people disagree with this. In the following paragraphs I discuss both sides of the coin.

To begin with, Money is pertinent in prevailing days. Take India for instance, Parents do diligent efforts to nourish and nurture they children. They are trying to give them the best education, which is impossible without money. As in India, schools have become commercialized. Parents have to spend a huge amount of money to make their children humanitarian because they know that education is quiet essential to their kids to compete in this competitive world. Thus it is clear from the above example that money is pivotal to provide even the qualification which is the base of every individual. Apart from this, if anyone have money, that person can buy anything and can go anywhere around this globe.

On the contrary, some people say that people who have lots of money still are unhappy. For instance, In India; big guns and the rank and file have enormous amount of money, but these people often suffer with severe diseases such as heart attack, diabetes, and so on. These people are unable to enjoy these lives because of that sort of illness. Besides this, morality level in their children is very low because of having significant amount of money. But I am at the variance of the above because if one has money he/she can easily fine the solution of all these problems.

Eventually, keeping all the above in consideration, I would like to conclude that money play a significant role in one's life. Without money no one can embark the edifice of success.
