This truth is universally acknowledged fact that problem of food and unemployment in some countries has gained a depressing magnitude. Government of any country can make or mar the lives of the country men. It is believed that this is responsibility of the government to look after the people in their difficult phase of lives. I totally agreed with the above statement because of the following reasons.

In order to justify my point of view, I would like to state that, People make the government for their own benefits. For instance, The constitution of India has a "slogan" that Indian government is "by the people, for the people and of the people. Thus, I is clear for this example that the election of government only occur to satisfy and satiates the requirement of the citizens of that country.

To strengthen my point of view further, I would like press upon the fact that, People pay an enormous amount of taxes every year. Take Australia, for instance, people of Australia pay a significant part of their wages as tax, such as income tax, carbon tax, toll tax and so on. These people honestly fulfill all the requirement yearly, with respect to that, Government earn a huge amount of funds every year. Therefore, it become prime duty of the government to provide a proper help whenever these people need in the hard time of their lives. Hence, the above example proves that, government should always be there for the inhabitants of their country.

However, some people are of the view that, with help of government people get lazy and lethargic. they never learn to overcome from their hardship of lives. But I am at the variance of this statement, as I believed that these little help by government gives us an opportunity and way out to combat the problem.

Eventually, keeping all the above in consideration, I would like to conclude that, with the prodigious efforts of the government, any country can embark the paradigm of excellence and epitome of perfection.
